Prabhuram wins big...

BJP candidate Narayan Patel has also won by a margin of 22129 votes. Two Congress candidates also won seats by over 20,000 votes. From Dimani Ravindra Singh Tomar won the election with a margin of 22,276 votes while from Karera, Congress candidate won by 26,369. He defeated BJP candidate.

BIHAR only A...

The BJP was the largest party at one point of time during the counting -- in a state where it has always played second fiddle to Nitish Kumar's JDU. However, the alliance led by Tejashwi Yadav turned the contest into dead heat, emerging as the largest party after 10 hours of counting. Among those to congratulate him for putting up a gritty fight was NCP leader Sharad Pawar.

What stood out was PM Modi's uncanny ability to swing a state Assembly election -- that too in the face of the severe economic downturn, a raging pandemic and a humanitarian crisis posed by mass migration. The results in the by-elections held in a dozen other states, which were also out on Monday, reinforced the PM's 'invincibility' factor.

CONGRESS DENTS TEJASHWI CHANCES: The party had insisted on contesting 70 seats, the second largest electoral pie after the RJD's 144, but its recurring flop show, worse than that in 2015, may cost Tejashwi his chief ministership. The party has squandered 19 seats, a dismal record even by Congress standard. Former Congress president Rahul Gandhi had vigorously campaigned in the state, but it is apparent the voters were not enamoured by his style of campaigning. In fact, every party has a better strike rate than the Congress.

The AIMIM, for the first time, won five seats in Seemanchal area, cutting into the traditional vote bank of the RJD and the Congress. "In politics, you learn from your mistakes. Our Bihar chief personally met each and every leader. No one was ready to touch us. Big parties treated me like an untouchable..." explained Hyderabad MP Asaduddin Owaisi, putting his victory in perspective.

The AIMIM will decide later which party it will support, Owaisi told NDTV. LEFT SURPASSES ITSELF: For the first time since 1977, Left parties have performed exceedingly well, with both CPI (ML) and CPM notching 16 constituencies. It could play an important role -- if need be -- in swinging a 'hung' house in Nitish's favour.

Surprisingly, even in the Yadav belt of Madhepura and Saharasa, RJD could not sway the voters and here, too, the JDU-BJP combine prevailed. Seeing the 'Jungle Ka Yuvraj' campaign neutralised the one million job promise.

Recounting where margin...

The RJD delegation further alleged that its candidates were leading all day but in the evening they were shown as having been trounced. Till late in the night, the BJP and the JDU had not begun celebrating, though the party offices were stockpiled with laddoos and firecrackers. The commission clarified that 3.97 crores votes had been counted thus far and about 5 lakh more votes were to be counted. The results in 149 constituencies have been announced and counting was on in the remaining 94 constituencies. The RJD has alleged chief minister Nitish Kumar, who "would be in the chair for the next few hours," was putting pressure on the returning officers to delay the declaration of results.

DULHA BADLEGA: As suspense mounted, with both the RJD-led alliance and the BJP still in the race, the two combines went into a huddle. The BJP pleased at having successfully fended off the anti-incumbency sentiment, asserted that this time 'Dulha Badlega' -- a subtle hint at a change in chief ministership. There was jubilation in the offices and outside the residences of the leaders of the RJD and the BJP, but the JDU unit was cloaked in silence. Though some enthusiastic party workers came to the JDU office and started beating drums, they were silenced by the principal spokesperson of the party and asked to return to barracks. As the see-saw battle between the NDA and the Grand Alliance continues till late in the evening, Home Minister Amit Shah rang up Nitish Kumar and thanked him for his leadership during the campaign. Later, he talked to deputy chief minister Sushil Kumar Modi too. Sources in the BJP indicated Nitish Kumar may propose the name of Sushil Kumar Modi as the leader of the NDA legislature party and as his successor. It is understood that Kumar is firm on not continuing as the chief minister, if the combine cruises through.

Imarti Devi's defeat...

Dandotiya contesting from Dimani was also served notice by election commission. He was defeated by his Congress rival Ravindra Singh Tomar by a margin of more than 21,000 votes. In Sumaoli, minister Aidal Singh Kansana lost to his Congress rival Ajab Singh Kushwah by a margin of about 10,000 votes. Sumaoli constituency had witnessed violence during election campaign including firing on the polling day.
